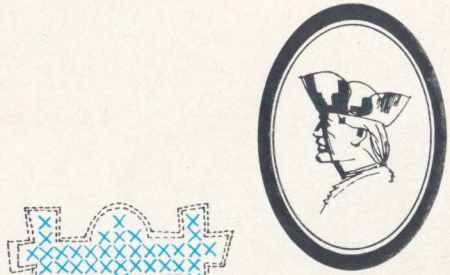
Master Of All Bedrooms – The Ethan Allen Heirloom Group captures the gracious dignity of the American past and combines it with modern convenience. The handsome Ten-Drawer Triple Dresser gives you a windfall of storage space engineered to your needs. As in all Ethan Allen furniture, every detail is crafted with pride; all drawers are finished to a satin smoothness to protect your most delicate garments. The rich brown Nutmeg finish has been patiently hand-rubbed to a soft glowing lustre. In short, this is an Heirloom bedroom you'll treasure for many years to come.

Shown are: No. 653 Ten-Drawer Triple Dresser with No. 557 Mirror; No. 651 Chest on Chest; No. 454 Duxbury Arm Chair; No. 2863 Barrel Chair.

Plan Before You Buy

Today's furniture is wonderfully adapted to your kind of life . . .
But family planning before you buy is more important than ever.

by Mary Davis Gillies, Home Furnishings Editor, McCall's Magazine



Once upon a not-so-long-ago home was furnished by fixed recipe. Example: Take an overstuffed sofa. Place against the longest wall. Flank with twin lamp tables. Add two heavily upholstered chairs, yawning at each other. Pour rest of budget into numerous other items in same period.

Today life has changed and so has furniture. The living is easier, breezier, more dynamic. Big families thrive in compact little ranch houses because they've learned to furnish flexibly. Young couples in their first fledgling flats cull from all periods and emerge with a dashing style of their own. Husbands clip pictures, carry fabric swatches and authoritatively discuss construction. Even three-year-olds go along to shop for their own chests and chairs. Result: homes today really reflect the human beings who live in them, have a pliant but deeply unified spirit.

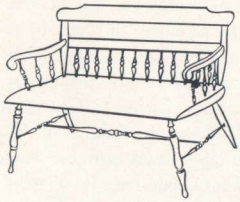
The new furniture works for you. Today's furniture fits your life—in scale, in mood, in price. Manufacturers have kept pace with new house plans, new habits of daily living. Designs stress simplicity and usefulness, but still have warmth and character. Clever tricks help to smuggle extra space into abridged abodes. Bulk is no longer the core of comfort. Sizable tables stand firm on slender metal legs, a few inches of foam rubber can be as gentle as mountains of down. The stiff "suite" has gone with the antimacassar. In its place: coordinates. They're pieces planned to go amiably with each other, but the power of selection is firmly in your hands.

Every family a decorating team. Now the challenge of choosing is up to you. Whether you're marrying, moving or redoing, you evolve your own recipe for a beautiful, livable home. You base it on your house, your mutual tastes and interests, your children, your cats, your dogs, your color loves. You work it out together and find your way by following some simple (but personally adaptable) planning routines. Here are a few pointers that will help you plan:

- Know your budget. Figure out how much you can afford to pay for what you want to do. Don't skimp on basic pieces, even if it means buying gradually.
- Make a floor plan. If you haven't a blueprint, make an accurate floor plan with pencil and paper. Measure each room with a rule or tape measure.
- Plot out your room. In scale to your floor plan, cut shapes out of paper to represent the various pieces of furniture you'll need. Move them around (it's easier than shoving furniture later), see if things will fit, work out various arrangements.
- Decide on your color scheme. With pictures, swatches and a paint-sample card, talk over your color preferences. Pick a harmony of hues the whole family will enjoy.
- Know your materials and makers. Check your knowledge of woods, of plastics. Ask about new finishes and their care. Be curious about construction features. (The furniture salesman is there to help.) Be wary of furniture when manufacturer's name is not available. Brand names serve as a guide to quality in furniture just as they do in appliances and automobiles.

Shown are: No. 616 Nine-Drawer Fitted Dresser with No. 557 Mirror; No. 618 Six-Drawer Chest on Chest with No. 553 Cheval Mirror; No. 697 Tester Bed; No. 2863 Barrel Chair; No. 1537 Drum Table; No. 445 Ladder Back Chair.

The Most Romantic Bedroom in the World—is your Ethan Allen room with the canopy bed. The authentic colonial design in warm hand-rubbed brown Nutmeg finish creates a dignified, impressive, charming mood. Best of all, this furniture is as practical as our American ancestors. The Fitted Dresser is a superb example of wonderfully planned storage and striking design. In this bedroom you will satisfy both your nostalgia for things gone by and your need for modern storage convenience.



The Ethan Allen Deacon's Bench (sometimes called a "Settle") was inspired by one of the most delightful pieces of authentic Americana. It is a perfect piece for foyer or den—makes its home beautifully in front of a blazing fire.

When Is A Bedroom More Than A Bedroom? When it's a living bedroom created with Ethan Allen Custom Room Plan furniture. Now you'll get full use of all the space in your home and convert your bedroom into a haven you'll love to use all around the clock. Here's a wonderful new privacy and comfort, plus the warmth, beauty and luxury of custom-planned rooms that solve every storage and decorating need. This is indeed a bedroom for extra pleasant living!

Add space for living with open stock Ethan Allen by turning lost walls into storage areas that have all the charm and convenience of the "built-in" look, but at modest cost.

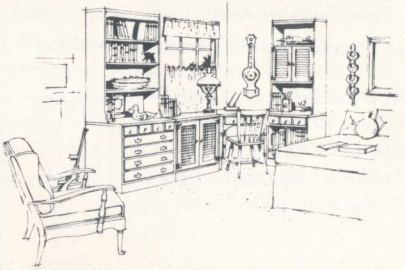
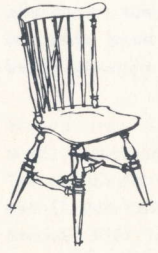
The Baby's Room . . . And How It Grew – See how your nursery of today can be a teen-ager's room tomorrow. This room keeps pace with the changing interests and needs of the growing child, answers space and storage needs at every age. With open stock Ethan Allen, you can start with a few basic pieces and add as time goes on. You're so wise to plan this way, too. There's no waste, no furniture to discard when you plan a room that will be as beautiful and practical in 15 years as it is now!



TEN YEAR OLD – (added pieces): No. 682 Corner Desk, No. 640 Upper Cabinet Bookcase. Plenty of room now for work and study.

This Dining Room Means Gracious Living — Comfortable chairs . . . the friendliness of a round table . . . the unmatched charm of Early American, all make this a room where family and guests will love to gather. With Ethan Allen Custom Room Plan furniture, a large room will look warm and cozy. A small or oddly-shaped room will acquire new character and beauty. With open stock Ethan Allen to choose from, you can suit your own decorating and storage needs. Cabinets, drawers for linens, silver, china, glass . . . open shelves for prized family heirlooms . . . whatever your desires, you'll find the answer in Ethan Allen.



The lovely Duxbury chair graced many a New England dining room in the 1700's. It takes its name from the charming village of Duxbury, Massachusetts, where it was originated by colonial craftsmen. The Ethan Allen Duxbury chair is modeled after a particularly fine example.

PLAN YOUR OWN ROOM — THIS SIMPLE WAY!

1. Just measure you own room, draw the outline of the room in the graph opposite—it's simple to plot because ¼" on the graph (1 square) equals 1 foot. (Don't forget to mark your doors and windows.)
2. Cut out the pieces above and fit them into your room plan to achieve just the decorative and storage results you need.
3. Move the cut-outs around to take full advantage of your wall space—you'll be delighted with the advantages an unforeseen shift in pieces will frequently yield.
4. Line sketches of all the Ethan Allen pieces are printed on the following pages to make it simple for you to select specific items you want and need.

Ethan Allen and the American Heritage

Ethan Allen and his famed "Green Mountain Boys" are a glorious part of our great American Heritage. During the night of May 10, 1775, with only 83 other Vermont patriots, Ethan Allen assaulted and captured Fort Ticonderoga from British regulars. Cannon taken from the fort were used by George Washington in forcing the British to evacuate Boston, and formed the basis of the American artillery forces during the Revolutionary war.

The fame of Ethan Allen as a leader in the Revolution grew until today he is acknowledged as one of the truly authentic heroes of those stirring times. In Vermont, too, because of his energetic struggles in behalf of that state, he is known as "The father of Vermont."

The furniture named for him is made in the same Green Mountains he fought for so bravely. It is furniture that seeks to capture for contemporary American living, the charm and strength of a great era in American history.
